

StratoKit is a young software integrations company active in the European construction industry. With our focus on delivering the next step in construction technology, we aim to improve efficiency and reduce delays on construction sites. We connect (= integrate) the building site with the office and the end-user at the same time.

Strengthening a team's collaboration, shortening the length of processes, and reducing environmental impact are not only our USP's towards our customers, but also the StratoKit team of professionals. Our result-based attitude and the 'work from anywhere at any time' approach, help us focusing on the mental well-being of our team members who are based in Poland, Belgium and Poland. Together we lead the way in writing the new chapter of construction technology.